

HUMINT for Law Enforcement Course

Highly Sought-Out Human Intelligence (HUMINT) Training Specifically Designed for Law Enforcement

The Human Intelligence (HUMINT) for Law Enforcement Course uniquely prepares police agencies and intelligence units to conduct effective, proper, and practical HUMINT operations within the U.S. landscape. The course includes lessons in the source acquisition cycle, motivation and vulnerabilities, recruitment strategies, rapport building techniques, source development, privacy protocols, and report writing.

Typical training courses for highly specialized topics such as HUMINT often lack practical application within law enforcement. The way intelligence agencies or foreign governments operate overseas does not always transcend domestically. Likewise, relying solely on the traditional recruitment of police informants is also an ineffective approach to today's complex threat environment. The unique solution offered through this course is a proven hybrid approach that combines the best intelligence practices from both disciplines, while also accounting for the limitations of homeland operations.

COURSE INFORMATION

- Taught by some of the top HUMINT experts in policing & homeland security.
- Three days of classroom instruction including presentations, practical and current examples, and in-class role playing.
- Restricted to police, fusion center, and homeland security professionals.
- Discounts are offered for organizations that host the course at their facility.

For more information email us at Info@ThreatPoint.net or visit our website at ThreatPoint.net