Intelligence Practitioner Course

Foundational Training for Intelligence Units and Fusion Centers

The Intelligence Practitioner Course provides law enforcement and homeland security professionals with a foundation in modern day intelligence collection and analysis. The course focuses on the practical applications of the intelligence cycle for police agencies and fusion centers, as well as the best practices for sharing information with the federal Intelligence Community (IC). Every successful intelligence unit needs a solid foundation in the principals of intelligence, the limitations of domestic operations, and the overall integration between the various components of homeland security. This course offers this foundation and more.
